The Starfish and the Spider | First Friday Book Synopsis

The story describes the narrator walking along the beach early one morning in the pre-dawn twilight, when he sees a man picking up a starfish off the sand and throwing it into the sea. The narrator is observant and subtle, but skeptical; he has seen many "collectors" on the beach, killing countless sea creatures for their shells.

The Star Thrower - Wikipedia

In reality, a starfish is a neural network -- basically a network of cells. Instead of having a head, like a spider, the starfish functions as a decentralized network. In The Starfish and the Spider, Ori Brafman and Rod A. Beckstrom address the fundamental differences between the starfish organization and the spider organization.
